FOR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.

Thou hast beheld, when childhood blossomed
And to the morning gave its rich perfume,
Thou hast beheld its petals grace display,
Rejoicing in the Eden of their bloom—
Which is the loveliness of childhood, fair,
Which is the fragrance lent to morning's breath,
But sainted charms are consecrated there,
When sweetly pillowed on the bed of death.

A VISION.
It was in a wild bower, where fragrant and green
Hung many a tender leafy nature had twined,
Tangled in fancy—gay—languid—serene—
And many fond images played on my mind.

FOR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.

On the ocean before me sailed many a bark—
Which through tempests and calms sped its clever way,
And sunk in the gulf—great—mysterious,
And never more to appear in the light of our day!

THE SOLITAIRE—No. III.

"The worst people are most injured by slanders, as we usually find that to be the best fruit which the birds have been picking at."

DEAN SWIFT.

There are many persons whose chief pleasure is to wound the reputation of their neighbours. They will descend from your public to your private character—from the affairs of the parlour down to the petty concerns of the kitchen. This mean and ungenerous spirit; these ill-natured humours; this more than fiend-like disposition is so extremely base and absurd,
that if instances of it did not daily occur
through life it would be almost impossible for a man of sense to believe them. How abject and mean must that man be who cannot converse but upon the vices of his fellow beings—who is always ready to report any thing to their disadvantage, and careful to conceal whatever good qualities they may possess. Slander is like a heavy shower, and though you may stand dry
under the pent-house of your conscience,
the world does not see it, and what is worse they will not see it. Men in this respect differ from angels—they having more joy over one fallen sinner than over a hundred just persons. It is in the power of every person to preserve his probity, but no man living can say, that he can preserve his reputation while there are so many evil tongues in the world ready to blast the fairest character, and so many open ears ready to receive their reports.

Cicero in one of his pleadings, defending his client from general scandal, says:—
"There are many who have particular engagements to the prosecutor; there are many who are known to have ill-will to him for whom I appear; there are many who are naturally addicted to defamation, and envious of any good to any man, who may have contributed to spread reports of this kind; for nothing is so swift as scandal, nothing is more easily sent abroad,
nothing received with more welcome, nothing diffuses itself so universally. I shall not desire, that if any report to our disad-vantage has any ground for it, you would overlook or extenuate it: But if there be any thing advanced, without a person can say whence he had it, or which is attested by one who forgot who told him it, or who had it from one of so little consideration that he did not then think it worth his notice, all such testimony as these, I know you will think too slight to have any credit against the innocence and honour of your fellow citizen."

The Hogshead of Odd Things—No. 1.

"Homo sum, et humani a me nil alienum puto."

PLAUTUS.

The poverty of our greatest authors is not unfrequently spoken of by some as though they considered it the almost unavoidable concomitant of a great genius. They suppose that to be learned we must be poor, and that whoever seeks to acquire the honour and reputation of a great scholar, must consign himself to misery and want.—
But I am rather inclined to believe that the acquisition of knowledge is not so much the dissipation
of wealth, as the absence of wealth is necessary for the acquirement of knowledge. It has been said by one who well knew the labours of study,
that "unless the mind be impelled by some imperious necessity it will seldom exert its powers
even to obtain its fondest wishes,"—and if we examine into the lives of those who have been most distinguished for their scientific attainments, it will generally be found that they have arisen from a lowly and humble condition. It was not their eager thirst for praise, nor the desire of being useful that alone excited them to action; but, as one very candidly confessed, "they were driven on by the fear of evil, rather than attracted by the prospect of good."

The mind of man is naturally roving and unsettled. Active in creating its own native fancies and pursuing them through the wide regions of imagination. Hence the greatest exertion is required to bring it within proper subjection, and
bind it down to those subjects to which it is naturally averse. And the more it has been allowed to range at its own will, the more it has been suffering to indulge in the gratification of its imaginations. Hence the greatest exertion is required to bring it within proper subjection, and
bind it down to those subjects to which it is naturally averse. And the more it has been allowed
to range at its own will, the more it has been suffering to indulge in the gratification of its imaginations. Hence the greatest exertion is required to bring it within proper subjection, and
bind it down to those subjects to which it is naturally averse. And the more it has been allowed
to range at its own will, the more it has been suffering to indulge in the gratification of its imaginations.

It is known to many of our readers, that one of the best productions of our language affords, and which Dr. Young justly calls "a mass of sense," was written to defray the funeral expenses of the author's mother, and many instances of the kind
may be cited to show that necessity is the principal inducement to application. It has been said by some that the learned authors were anxious to point out the disadvantages of wealth, and the dangerous circumstances attending its possession, merely because they were deprived of the comforts it procures. Be this as it may, my present purpose is only to consider whether it is not very apt to retard, if not utterly impede the progress of students, by engaging their time and attention in the more pleasing and advantageous pursuit of objects, which is generally presents to al-lure them from the direct road of knowledge.

This road has always been represented by its travellers as steep and difficult; yet many set out with light hopes and ambitious views, without considering the difficulties they must encounter
and the continual labours they must endure.—
They take a wide survey of the field of science,
and vainly hope, at one effort, to grasp its beauties and its treasures. But before they have proceeded far this delusion vanishes, and but a few are found bold enough to withstand the shock of disappointment. They are those to whom fortune displays none of her gifts; for whom ease spreads no couch; for whom luxury has nothing to bestow, and within whose was the stern voice of pleasure has never sounded.

court admiration; while, as "sunny smiles"
would pass over her face a thousand little charms seemed to break forth from their concealment.

When the amusements had concluded,
they took the path to the village chapel,
accompanied by a train of relatives and friends, while I also followed close in the rear. The holy father was ready with his book—the youth led the trembling maid to the altar, and as she breathed forth her responses, I never heard a voice so melodious—it was soft as "summer winds," and
"tender as the sound of love."

 I had tarried too long—I hastened from the enchantress, wondering within myself how any human being could resist woman's matchless charms. R. E.

they throw off with most pleasure when they are at liberty. A brilliant Scotch Belle has hardly exhausted the admiration of the fashionable in Glasgow, when she longs for solitude; and the first thought that occupies her in some bye-path, some solitary garden, or in the mysterious obscurity of her chamber, is not, as with us, the recollection of the last man who looked at her with a sigh, or the last woman who eclipsed her toilet; it is the impatient want of taking off her shoes and stockings, and to run with bare feet on the carpet, the turf, or the sand of the high road.

DEATH AND CUPID—A FABLE.
Jupiter sent forth Death and Cupid to travel together round the world, giving each of them a bow in his hand, and a quiver of arrows at his back. It was ordered by the disposer of human affairs, that the arrows of Love should only wound
the young, in order to supply the decays of mortal
man; and those of Death were to strike old age, and free the world from a useless charge. Our travellers being one day extremely fatigued with their journey, rested themselves under the covert of a wood, and throwing down their arrows in a promiscuous manner before them, they both fell fast asleep. They had not reposed themselves long, before they were awakened by a sudden noise. Hastily gathering up their arrows, each in the confusion took by mistake some of the darts that belonged to the other. By this means it frequently happened that Death vanquished the young, and that Cupid the old. Jupiter observed the error, but did not think proper to redress it, foreseeing that some good might arise from the unhappy exchange—and in fact, if men were wise,
they would learn from this mistake, to be apprehensive of Death, in their youth and to guard against the amorous passion in old age.

The Philadelphia Index; OR DIRECTORY FOR 1823.

To appear early in January—Price one dollar and a half.

THE public are respectfully informed, that the subscribers have made arrangements for the publication of a DIRECTORY, at the commencement (say first month) of the ensuing year. The orthography, heretofore the source of so many errors, shall be particularly attended to, and every exertion used to make it correct. Having, during the last twenty-five years, been more or less engaged in a manner conducive to a thorough acquaintance with the materials of what ought to form a correct Directory, the Editor presumes that his present undertaking will be found, at least, inferior to none of his predecessors. He disclaims all participation in former Directories, as well as supplementing, second editions, &c.

It would be altogether useless to say any thing relative to the utility of a Directory—no house, public or private, should be without one; much less those in business. All Societies (Beneficial, Mechanical, &c.) will be noted, and it is respectfully hoped that they will furnish themselves with copies;—indeed the nature of the work would seem to claim a place on the table of every Society.

Proprietors, Agents, and Masters of the different lines of Water Packets, Steam Boats, &c., would add to the gratification of their friends by having some copies on board. To those bound here, it would, it is presumed, be a great mean of furthering their inquiries relative to the residence and present business of many of their friends and correspondents.

The Editor takes this opportunity of returning his most fervent thanks to the gentlemen Directors of all the city Banks, for their generous encouragement—many having subscribed for five, and none for less than two copies—This, added to other prospects, gives a promising assurance of a goodly number of readers; it will, of course, be an advantageous medium for advertisers—it affords them an opportunity of exhibiting their publications to a large portion of the public eye, for one year at least.

Advertisements inserted at the rate of five dollars per page; half a page three; and a quarter of a page two dollars.

The work will be published by Mr. ROBERT DESILVER, No. 110 Walnut-street, where subscriptions, advertisements, &c. will be gratefully received. It is requested that all removals, formations and dissolutions of partnerships, changes in any way affecting the former business-name, may be left as above, in all the fore half of the month of December, where they shall receive every attention. Also, that the Presidents or Secretaries of the different Societies furnish the names of their three principal officers, viz. President, Secretary and Treasurer.

The Officers of the different Fire Engine and Hose Associations are requested to furnish the names of the Officers, the places where the several Engines and Hoses are situated, and such other communications as they may feel desirous of communicating.

Those who desire it, may examine, at Mr. Robert Desilver's Bookstore, in a book prepared for the purpose, the names, alphabetically arranged, as taken down the week previous.

Mr. Thomas S. Manning, Printer, No. 11, South Sixth-street, will also receive subscriptions, advertisements, notices, &c.

Patrick Feeney, Printer.

Foreign Intelligence.

From the New York Commercial Advertiser.

TEN DAYS LATER FROM ENGLAND.

By the arrival at Boston of the ship Triton, Capt. Bussey, in 31 days from Liverpool, the editors of the Commercial Advertiser have received from their attentive correspondents, files of London papers to the 10th and Liverpool of the 11th of July.

The contents of the foreign journals, from which we have made extracts, are of a more warlike aspect than those received by the last arrival, and strengthen the opinion, which we have never yet seen cause altogether to abandon, that the Turks will not accede to the terms proposed by Russia, until force is employed. The horrible massacre of the Greeks at Scio, has excited the greatest indignation at St. Petersburg and Moscow, and is stated to have produced a change in the views of Alexander, now favourable to the continuance of peace. If such has been the effect produced by this barbarous policy, what are we to expect from the account of the more recent slaughter, in cold blood, at Constantinople, of the Greeks, residing in that city, who had offered themselves, and were accepted as hostages for the good behaviour of their remaining brethren who escaped the butchering knives of the ferocious Musselmans? Alexander himself may be cajoled by the pressing representations made to him as to the dangers which threaten "legitimacy," by the establishment of free governments in the East. But we have yet to learn that the nobles of Russia, whose influence at any time can controul the decisions of the sovereign, are disposed to shut their eyes to the rights of humanity, and to allow those of their own faith to be exterminated, without making one effort to stay the hands of their blood thirsty persecutors.

We are glad to observe that success continues to attend the arms of Greece, and that there is some reason for believing the Porte is at last convinced, that all the attempts to reclaim the Morea are untenable. So confident do the Greeks appear of ultimate success, that they have actually issued a decree, declaring Turkey to be in a state blockade.

We were always of opinion, that the disturbances in Spain of which we have heard so much of late, were occasioned by the machinations of the enemies of the Constitutional system, and not the consequence of the change which had taken place. The Address of the Cortes, traced these excitations to emissaries from France, which had roused the indignation of the Spaniards to so high a pitch against the French in general, that Madrid was no longer safe for their Ambassadors. Notwithstanding, the disaffected had again been at work. The answer of the King to the Cortes, is of a character to excite favorable anticipations, and to induce a persuasion that whatever may be his own secret wishes, or those of the enemies of liberty, all their attempts to create discord will fail of their intended effects.

On the 1st of July, in the British House of Commons, the Chancellor of the Exchequer introduced his Budget, by which it appears that there was a deficiency in the last quarter of the revenue of about 36,000,000 sterling. The estimated expenses of the year, however, were 51,119,000, and the income for the same period 54,252,000, leaving a surplus of 3,133,000.

The pretensions of the Emperor of Russia to the territory on the north west coast of America, had been the subject of some discussion in the House of Commons, by which we learn that the British ministry are hostile to the views of Alexander; but that the matter had been made the subject of negotiation.

The King of England is said to have again altered his mind, and to have determined on paying a visit to Scotland.

LONDON, July 4.

The sufferings of our afflicted fellow creatures in Ireland are as piercing and appalling, as when we last bemoaned the continued beneficence of our readers in their behalf. The contributions are exhausted! And what remains? A mass of wretchedness undiminished; or if the cry be more feeble, and the number of the victims be in aught reduced, it is not with anguish we say so—it is not that the relief afforded to them has yet raised any above the recurrence of want, but that famine and pestilence have swept away thousands beyond the reach of sympathy.

July 7.

The Duke of York, it is said, has made over his estate at Oatlands, with all the growing crops, &c. to trustees, for the payment of his debts.

Miss M. Tree's benefit at Covent Garden Theatre, drew the largest amount that has been received on any night of the present season.

A duel was fought near London on Friday last, between Capt. O'Grady, M.P. attended by the Hon. John Lowther, and James Grattan, Esq. M.P. attended by the Hon. Charles Howard Butler Clarke, when after an exchange of shots the seconds interfered, and the parties shook hands before they left the ground.

BRUSSELS, July 1.

It was well known that the object of Lucien Bonaparte, Prince of Canino, to Brussels, was the marriage of his eldest son with the eldest daughter of the Count de Surville (Joseph Bonaparte.) This marriage was celebrated the day before yesterday at the town Hall, and the Church, with the usual ceremonies.

AUGSBURG, June 29.

Within the last week, we have had several private accounts of great successes gained by the Greeks in Thessaly. The most recent advices, which we received yesterday, not only confirm these accounts, but furnish a number of details, the result of which is, that the Turkish Corps d'Armee have been successfully defeated; namely, Chourschid Pacha, at Kartditz, near Trikala, by Diamantia; the Pacha of Salonica, at Cara Veria, and the Turkish Corps d'Armee, which was entrenched in the environs of Larissa, and which had joined a detached corps of Salonica. This victory was gained the 4th of June, in the environs of Zeitouni, by three Greek corps united, under the orders of Ypsilanti, Diamantia, and Odysseus. By this last victory, the plan of operation formed at Constantinople to effect the subjection of the Morea has entirely failed. The Greeks are again masters of Thessaly, with the exception of some forts and the town of Larissa. We expect shortly the official bulletin, which will doubtless be published by the provisional Greek Government at Corinth.

FROM SMYRNA.—An American gentleman, now at this place, has written to his friends in New York, to the following effect:

"SMYRNA, 17th May, 1823.

"Dear Sir—Our situation in this country remains about as distressing as ever; in fact, more so. Formerly, we were only doomed to witness daily murders in our streets; now, we see poor women and children torn from their homes, and sold to the Turks in Asia. The daughter of a poor Greek peasant sold to a Turkish Aga, may pass; but a young lady, brought up in all the luxury of affluence, sold to a rich Turkish boor, and with him to inhabit the hills and plains of Asia—a mother brought thus far with her children, companions of her misery—and then witnessing the state of one poor child after the other, to be scattered over the country—what can equal this? death is nothing to it. Strict orders have been given to prevent the sale of any of their slaves to any Christian; a few have been bought by the force of money. All the men in Scio have been killed, and all the women and children made slaves. Not content with this, the Government at Constantinople are beholding the poor Sciois as fast as they can find them, although residents in that place for thirty or forty years."

A Friendly Fracas.—It appears from the Nantucket papers, that a good deal of excitement had taken place there, in consequence of a complaint having been preferred against a quaker, named William Holley, for an assault on Jeremiah Austin, another member of the Friends' Meeting. Holley having been arrested, an immense crowd followed him to the meeting-house, where he was taken for examination by a justice of the peace. By the evidence, it turned out, that Holley at the last preparative meeting of the Friends, took said Jeremiah from the steps of the said meeting-house, and prevented his entering the house on that day. Holley's defence was, that he was authorised so to do by a committee appointed by the members of Friends' Society, for that purpose. It appeared on evidence, that Jeremiah had been very troublesome heretofore in the monthly and preparative meetings, which had induced the members to adopt this measure. Holley was therefore acquitted.

FROM THE BOSTON EVENING GAZETTE.

A gross cheat was practised on Saturday last, upon one of the city Meal-men, at a shop in the W. part of the town. He offered some meal for sale, when a bystander engaged in conversation with him and invited him to try his luck at the Bowling Alley, which was attached to the shop.—Having won a few dollars, he was about to retire, but was induced to play longer, upon large odds being offered by his antagonist upon the share ball. In conclusion he was fleeced of his money amounting to $150.—It afterwards appeared that the pins had been attached to them by which the fellows employed in setting them up for the players could pull them down so as to win the bet at their pleasure without being detected.

The agent to whom the money belonged has since pursued the winner, arrested him and he is now in confinement. The owner of the Alley was presented before the Grand Jury, and his license has been taken from him.

FROM THE NEW YORK AMERICAN, AUG. 12.

The brig Vermont arrived yesterday at quarantine from Blakely. Capt. Nichols, late master, (formerly sailing master of the Washington 74) who has a family at Brooklyn, died on the 7th instant, of yellow fever, when off the Delaware. A coloured man, named Thos. Hicks, a native of Long Island, died on the 7th of the same disease. The vessel came into port with only one man on board able to do duty, four sick men were taken to the hospital. The mate states that they were all sick and helpless on deck at the same time. Fortunately the vessel was favoured with mild weather, or they would all have been lost. When they sailed from Blakely they were all in good health.

FROM THE NEW YORK GAZETTE.

THE SPONGES.

There were about fifteen hundred visitors at Saratoga and Ballston on Monday last. The governor, generals Van Rensselaer and Lewis, and other distinguished individuals, are at the former place, and the Spanish minister and Joseph Bonaparte at the latter. The principal public houses at Saratoga are filled with visitors, the greater part of whom are induced to prolong their stay in consequence of the various reports that reach them of the fever in this city, and which are frequently rendered alarming by the spirit of exaggeration exhibited by their narrators. The British minister, Mr. Canning, and suite, arrived at Saratoga on Monday.

FROM THE NEW YORK EVENING POST.

HEALTH OF THE CITY.

The reports for several days have been so favorable, and such efficient measures have at last been taken by the board of health to prevent the fever from spreading, that we begin to hope it will be arrested in its progress. No case has yet occurred that has not been clearly traced to the infected district, now enclosed by order of the board, and with which no communication is allowed. No vessels from sickly foreign ports are permitted to come to our wharves; and in short, every means which prudence could suggest has been adopted to put an effectual stop to the disease. Persons in the country, whose business may call them to the city, need not be under the least apprehension, if they will only avoid the infected district. The alarm which has been sounded abroad is certainly greater than facts will warrant. The number of deaths are not as great as they were last year at this time when there was no yellow fever.

MEXICO.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Mexico, to his friend in Lexington, (Ken.) dated City of Mexico, June 7, 1822.

"This is the most resourceful, richest, poorest country at this moment, perhaps, in the universe. The climate here, within the tropics, is much cooler than near New Orleans. The city lies on the north side of a dead flat of rich low ground, surrounded by lofty mountains, and from 15 to 20 miles in diameter, in grass or under miserable cultivation, and ditched and canalised in all directions. The foot of the mountains is ornamented with numerous villages, and numberless churches, with lofty domes and spires, the interior of which present a blaze of the precious metals; yet the obstruction of the mines, the failure of commerce, the interruption of the miserable agriculture of the country, and the abolition of internal taxes, to popularise the revolution, have prostrated the finances of the country, and left the richest of its inhabitants in poverty. Circulating coin (specie) is hardly more scarce in your Lexington.

Iturbide.—Accounts received at Charleston from Havana, inform us that the self created Emperor of Mexico, had re-established the Inquisition of the Friars—had persecuted liberal and philanthropic men—would not permit the European Spaniards to return to their native country, nor enter his newly established empire; and had endeavored to prevent the exportation of the property which belonged to them. The people of New Spain are stated to be divided into four parties, viz. Imperialists, Republicans, Serviles, and Constitutionalists, which, it was not doubted, would occasion civil discord and intestine war.

A Miraculous Escape.—The house of Mr. Randal Jaggard, near Woodbury, N.J. was struck with lightning on the night of the 3d inst. and very much injured. The electric fluid first came in contact with the chimney, which it entirely destroyed—descended the chimney to the chamber, and melted a part of the shovel and tongs which had been placed across the hearth in covering the fire, from thence it was attracted by a fowling piece standing in the room, and descended the barrel, tore off the breech, melted the pan, and discharged the load; the next thing in its course was the bedstead, the head board of which it shattered to pieces. Mr. and Mrs. J. with a child, were in bed at the time, and were so stunned as to remain 15 or 20 minutes entirely insensible.

Counterfeiters.—A society has been formed of counterfeiters and horse stealers, which embraces the state of Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, North and South Carolina. The society has agents in these states who sell the horses stolen.—A man named James Vineyard, one of the gang, was shot at Washington, (Ga.) in attempting to rob a stable of a horse. Another, calling himself by different names, was riding about the country on a fine bay horse, with a good saddle, holsters and martingale, and having about $40,000 of counterfeit money in his possession. The civil power had adopted measures to put a stop to the career of these pests of society.

Health of Savannah.—It appears by the official report published at Savannah on the 31st ult. that there was on that day 26 cases of intermittent, and 5 remittent, and one of worm fever. The Savannah Republican remarks on this report "that notwithstanding there is a greater number of cases of fever, we have every reason to view our city as comparatively in a healthy condition, when we reflect that so great a majority of them are of the intermittent character; and that the committees have reported several of them as having resulted from intemperance."

Harper's Ferry, (Va.) Aug. 7.

CASUALTY.—We regret to learn that a serious and distressing accident occurred in Shepherdstown on Saturday last. It appears that some preparations were making, at the gun smith shop of Mr. Sheets, for the discharge of rockets in the evening. For this purpose, a keg of powder was placed on one of the workbenches; when some person heedlessly snapped a fire-lock, which communicated a spark to the keg, and in an instant the building was demolished. Three persons were severely burnt, but escaped with life: one of them, it is said, has lost his sight. We have heard the names of but two of them: Simeon Turner and Wm. Fields.

WASHINGTON, (Pa.) Aug. 5.

MURDER!—On Wednesday last, William Crawford, a wealthy farmer of Fallowfield township, Washington county, was committed to jail in this place, for the murder of his son, Henry, the day before, at about the age of 28 years. This horrid deed is said to have had its origin in a disagreement which existed for some time between old Mr. Crawford and his wife, the mother of the deceased, she living at the time the murder was committed in the residence of the old man.—On the morning previous to his putting into execution his hellish purpose, it appears that he had declared he would kill his son that day. The instrument of death (a gun) was attempted to be wrested from him by some person present, who desisted on the old man's threatening to kill him if he did not cease to interfere. He deliberately took aim, we are informed, placing the gun against the cheek of the door, before which his son was sitting, and shot him dead on the spot. In addition to the above particulars, a person who was present at the time says, the deceased had been repeatedly threatened by his father, but from the age and infirmities of the old man, he apprehended no danger except from the gun, which he had put out of order for his security; the father, however, had procured some person who repaired it.

The town of Oxford, in Chenango county, N. Y. was visited on the 4th inst. with a most destructive tornado, which did immense damage to the buildings, orchards, grain, &c. in that section of the country. Several buildings were prostrated—houses were unroofed, chimneys and fences blown down, and trees uprooted. In Oxford, the timber on several hundred acres was destroyed. The trees in several orchards were twisted off and hurled into the air, and their fruit scattered in every direction.

Four hundred dollars reward is offered by Knowler & Hacen, of Montreal, for the apprehension of Benjamin Ruggles, by profession a Tanner, a native of Harrisburg, in the state of Pennsylvania. He absconded from Quebec about the 7th July, having defrauded his employers and creditors of a large sum of money, and is supposed to have gone either to Halifax, or the United States. He took with him about 6000 pounds, mostly in guineas or British gold.

The Macedonian.—The Norfolk Herald of the 12th inst. states, that two new cases of the disease prevailing among the crew of the Macedonian were reported on Wednesday, since when eight, we understand, deaths have taken place since the arrival of the ship, in one of whom the arrival deplores the loss of that active and intelligent officer Lieutenant George Pierce, first of this State. The accounts from the ship, and last evening are quite encouraging, and we may indulge a hope that most, if not all, of the men now sick will recover.

FOREIGN ITEMS.

The following curious paragraphs are copied from late English papers:

A gentleman, just arrived from New York, states that hydrophobia existed to a frightful degree at various parts of the U. S. At Philadelphia and New-York, the military had been out to destroy all the dogs, which might find in the streets.—London Times.

More Ignorance.—On Wednesday, says the True Briton of June 24, Mr. Rowland the late candidate for the office of President of the United States of America, dined with Admiral Sir J. H. Whithed, K.C.B. Commander in Chief at Portsmouth. Every suitable attention was paid to this distinguished gentleman: he visited the Royal George Yacht, and ships in the harbor, and afterwards proceeded to Ryde.

At the late Court of Quarter Sessions held in Westchester, it was decided, after full hearing, that single and unmarried women with capitals under five hundred dollars are embraced in the exception respecting "femme sole traders," under the provisions of the Act of Assembly in relation to Retailers of Foreign goods and merchandize, and not compelled to take out Licenses.

The Petersburg Intelligencer informs that a quarrel has just taken place between two young men of respectable parentage at Brunswick court-house. A rencounter ensued, in the course of which one of the combatants drew a knife or duck and stabbed the other in such a way as to cause most instantane death. The wretched survivor fled immediately.

Capt. Johnson, of the ship Ocean, from Pensacola, which place he left 25th July, states that the legislature of the territory had commenced its session, and were transacting business. The publication of the Floridian newspaper was suspended, in consequence of the proprietor's being out of paper.

From Canton.—By the Enterprize, capt. Breyvoort, information has been received that all the foreign trade had been stopped at Canton, in consequence of its having been discovered that some opium had been smuggled into the country. Orders had been given that every vessel arriving in future, should be strictly searched.

A man was found drowned in the mouth of the Cohazny a short time since. He is reported to have been well dressed, and of a genteel appearance. There is but little doubt of his having been murdered, as his said one of his hands were tied to his left with a drum line, doubtless to prevent his escape to shore by swimming.—Bridgetown Whig.

Literary.—We learn that a series of novels founded on events which happened at the first settlement of Massachusetts and New-Hampshire, is in preparation for the press. The public may expect the first, entitled "The Hermyte of Kaskoe," to appear in a short time.

During the last week proposals were issued at Boston, for publishing no less than three new papers—one to be entitled The General Interest Herald—another, The Midding Interest Champion—and a third, The Diana, or Ladies' Spectator.

On board the American Ship Meteor, capt. Cobb, which sailed from New York on the 24th of May, and arrived at Liverpool June 24, they had radishes to eat every day during the passage. A box which made part of the hen-coop attached to the companion way, with holes in the bottom, was filled with earth. The radishes were fit to eat when got at New York, were taken up for use as they were wanted. The box was lashed to the stanchions on the quarter deck.

The Agricultural Society of Bucks county, earnestly recommend to their fellow citizens, to strictly prohibit the practice of gunning on their lands, inasmuch as it is believed that the present alarming increase of insects is principally owing to the destruction of Birds. The damage done to the crops in that county the current year is immense.

A fracas occurred at the Circus on Monday night, of which three different accounts are published in the papers. Three or four subordinates were engaged, and in attempting to secure one or more of them, the police officer, who was aided with a shower of stones and brick-bats, and Raymond, were both considerably injured, and they did not fail to fulfil their duty. (L. F. P.)

The sword voted to general Gaines by the legislature of Tennessee, was presented to that gentleman by Gov. Carroll, on the 19th ult. in the Presbyterian Church in Nashville. The general was escorted to the church by the Nashville Guards, and accompanied by the Mayor and Aldermen of the town, and a large concourse of citizens.

PHILADELPHIA.
Saturday, August 17, 1822.

Friend Minor, of the Village Record, in noticing the proposals by Bennett & Walcott, Booksellers, of this city, for publishing a new and highly improved edition of BROOKS'S GAZETTEER, has the following observations:—

"We intended before now to have called the attention of our readers to it. To appear to be one of the most necessary books that can be brought into a family. A Dictionary containing the names of all the Countries, Nations, Kingdoms, States, Counties, Mountain, Rivers, Islands, &c. in the world, with a short description of the situation of, and what is remarkable in relation to each, it will be seen at once, must not only be valuable to the children, but useful to all; for how often is it that in reading we find the names of places mentioned, the situation of which we are ignorant of. A Gazetteer in the house explains the difficulty in a moment. We have never been very forward in recommending particular books, but we feel confident that whoever purchases this, will think their money well laid out."

All intercourse between this city and New-York, has been interrupted by an order of the Board of Health.

The Hon. Jonathan Russell, has pronounced a bill of indictment before the Grand Jury of the City of New-York, against Seth Hunt, Esq. for the libel alleged to be contained in the Queries of Ariel, lately published in the N. Y. Statesman.

A novel and singular experiment took place yesterday afternoon, in the Delaware river, opposite Market street, the object of which was to show the utility of the Life-preserving Dress. It is said, (for we did not witness the feat,) that the inventor jumped into the water, clad in his new apparel, the buoyancy of which sustained him from sinking, without any apparent difficulty, and much to the gratification of the spectators. The experiment will be repeated on Thursday afternoon next, between three and four o'clock, from on board one of the Baltimore line of Steamboats.

On Thursday afternoon, a fellow who pretended to be deaf and dumb, called at a house in Eighth street, and after regaling himself at the expense of the charitable female occupant, had the audacity to carry off an elegant gold watch which was hanging over the mantle piece.

Deaths of New-York.—The New-York papers of Thursday, mention four new cases of yellow fever, and two deaths—a Mrs. Hill, and a Mr. Ackley, a clerk in one of the public offices at Washington, who had landed near the infected district on Wednesday of last week.

Two new cases of fever were reported yesterday morning, at the meeting of the New-York board of health.

The entertainments will be of a peculiarly splendid kind, consisting of Equestrian and Dramatic performances, in many of the latter, horses will be introduced. In the course of the season, which will extend to three months and upwards, several interesting spectacles will be brought forward, in the number of which will be included the Coronation.

We are happy to learn that the Trustees of the University have determined to remove the Hall in Ninth-street. That beautiful building, if kept in good order, will be regarded as one of the chief ornaments of the city.—Union.

Deaf and Dumb.—The committee of the Pennsylvania Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, advertise for applications to form a class to be admitted on the first of October. Application must be made before the first of September. There are still ten vacancies under the legislative bounty, which they are anxious to fill.

Escape.—Four prisoners made their escape from Hartford jail, on Wednesday week, by working their way through a hole made for a stove pipe, and descending to the ground by a ladder constructed of their bedding and clothes.

Arson.—A negro girl has been convicted on her own confession, at Alexandria, (D. C.) of attempting to set fire to her owner's premises, for the purpose of destroying them. She was to be transported beyond the district in which the offence was committed.

Fire.—On the 31st ult. the distillery of William Morehouse of Charlton, (N. Y.) was destroyed by fire, together with twelve blads. of whiskey, 100 bushels of grain, and 24 live hogs. The loss is estimated at $3000.

It is ascertained that the Indians at two places in the interior of Michigan, are engaged in making salt.

Natural History.—A torpedo (Raja Torpedo) has been found in shoal water, near one of the islands in the harbor of Portland, (Maine.) It was kept in a tub of water for ten or twelve hours, after which it languished and died. The skin has been saved and stuffed.

A writer in the Boston Gazette, contradicts the report that Mrs. Sedgwick of N. York, formerly Miss Minot of Boston, is the author of New England, the novel lately published.

A number of colored persons have been bound over to appear at the next Mayor's court, to answer for their conduct at the church in Lombard-street, between Fifth and Sixth-street, on Sunday afternoon last. It seems that this church was built a few years since by a party of receders from the congregation of Allenites, in Sixth-street, near Lombard, but that the African Bishop, lately acquiring in some way a title to it, went in procession at the head of his followers, on Sunday last, to consecrate it.—Before this ceremony, however, could be performed, a battle took place, in which the Allenites were completely victorious.—Union.

The paucity of poetical themes, says the Catskill Recorder, (or of poetical talent, if you please) is apparent from the objects to which rymers address their effusions. A late Philadelphia paper contains among its original poetry, an address "To the Moon," "To the New Moon," "To a Mouse," "To a Jackdaw," "To a Kitten," "Love."—We cannot, of course, object to the last; but we grieve to see it in such company.

A most daring robbery was committed in New-York on Wednesday night, at the house of Mr. John Francis. Between the hours of one and three o'clock, the chamber of Mr. William Ryder, on the second floor, in which himself and wife slept, was entered and a number of articles stolen therefrom.

FROM MEXICO.

Extract of a letter from a merchant in Tampico to his correspondent in N. Orleans, dated JUNE 21.

"An express, just arrived from Mexico, brings information that the Emperor Iturbide has seized on a convoy which was about setting out for Vera Cruz, with 900,000 dollars, and appropriated the same towards paying the current expenses of his government; thus you see the poor Gachupins pay for the roast. In Mexico, the discontent is general, and many of the creoles even have or intend to emigrate, from disaffection to Iturbide, and through fear of the Holy Inquisition which is about to be restored."

FROM THE BOSTON PALLADIUM.

From the Brazils.—By Capt. Defrees, in 43 days from St. Salvador, we learn, that the Brazils remained in an unsettled state. Rio and Pernambuco had declared in favor of the young Prince, and unless more troops arrived soon at St. Salvador from Portugal, in a short time, it would, no doubt, follow the example. Cachocira, a village containing from 7 to 8000 inhabitants, situated about 50 miles from St. Salvador, had declared for the Prince. Troops marched from St. S. to quell the Revolutionists, two days before Capt. D. sailed, but the result was not known. There were but 1500 European troops at St. S. and perhaps about 1000 militia of Europeans.—Several thousand more troops were daily expected from Lisbon. The object of the Brazilians is to free themselves entirely from the mother country.

The Saturday Mail.

New-York, August 16.

The Philadelphia Board of Health, on Wednesday, prohibited all intercourse with the city of N. York. We do not complain; but certainly it was a most unnecessary measure. The city of New-York, generally, was never more healthy than at present, and we believe there was a less number of deaths in this city last week, than in Philadelphia. There has been no danger out of the infected district, and but little alarm, as every case has been distinctly traced to it. The district is now depopulated almost entirely, and is substantially fenced up. We have therefore good reason to believe that the disease will wholly disappear within a few days.

[Commercial Advertiser.]

Interesting Strangers.—We observe by the Boston papers that Mr. Cervau, his wife, five children and servants, have arrived at that place from Smyrna. Mr. C. is a French gentleman of high respectability, who has resided many years in the Turkish dominions, and his wife is a Greek, a native of the Island of Scio. The children are dressed in the costume of their native country, and have excited much curiosity at Boston. As the family intend coming southward, it is likely we shall have the pleasure of seeing these interesting strangers.

Smugglers.—A gang, consisting of forty smugglers, is stated, in the Montreal papers, to have attacked the dwelling of W. Hamilton, Esq. his majesty's collector of customs at Stanstead, broke the door, removed the goods seized and lodged there, threatened the relatives of Mr. Hamilton, that unless they left the house the following day, they would be thrown into a mill pond adjoining. They were armed with muskets, pistols, &c.

An unfortunate man of the name of Arthur Simonton, died in Bridewell on Wednesday evening. He was taken up in the Park two or three days ago, in a state of mental derangement—stripping his clothes off there in broad day, &c. &c. and secured for the time in Bridewell. Day before yesterday, he was discharged; but brought up again the same day, by some of the citizens at the North River, into which quarter he had wandered; and where it appeared to them he was about to drown himself. He was re-committed accordingly, and yesterday morning found in his apartment a corpse.

Enormous Seal.—An animal of this description, weighing four hundred pounds, is stated to have been caught in the river St. Lawrence, opposite Montreal, on the 3d instant.

Sea Serpent.—The Portland Gazette of Tuesday states, that several gentlemen at Nahant have recently had a distant view of this celebrated monster of the deep, whose periodical return is now ascertained. Since which he has been seen every day by different individuals of the highest respectability—and we hear a letter has been received in town describing the whole of his appearance."

A WOMAN PERISHED.—An Eaton, Ohio, paper, of July 2, contains the following:—
An elderly gentleman, who died in Fayette county, state of Kentucky, previous to his death requested that his daughter's remains should be disinterred and deposited by the side of his own.—His daughter had been buried about eleven years, in the county of Bourbon, Ky. After his decease, the old gentleman's request was complied with.—To the great surprise and astonishment of those engaged in raising the daughter's remains, her body was found to be entire, and of its full size. On a minute examination it was discovered to be perfectly petrified—its specific gravity was about the same as that of common lime stone. The coffin was entirely decayed. Her countenance had undergone so small an alteration that her husband, it is said, faints on beholding her.

It was given in evidence, before the committee of the House of Commons, that the consumption of dutiable spirits, during the year, amounted, in England, to somewhat more than one-third of a gallon; in Ireland, to three-fourths of a gallon; and in Scotland, to one gallon and a quarter, for each individual. The average is taken on the gross population; and so remarkable a difference is attributed principally to the quality.

As a proof of the healthful state of the inhabitants of the city of London, says an English paper, which within its walls contains ninety-seven parishes, we learn by the last weekly bills of mortality, that the number of deaths did not exceed fifteen.

The English papers continue to detail the distresses which yet exist in Ireland.

On this occasion he addressed the audience, and after the usual compliments, and an allusion to his contemplated visit to the U. States, he concluded, "I trust to be enabled to bring back a new budget for your amusement, and all my powers of observation shall be roused to their utmost to collect such materials in my travels as shall prove that I have not absented myself from your smiles in vain." He was to sail on the 1st inst. in the ship Wm. Thompson, for N. York.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

JUSTINIAN must not expect that we will subject ourselves to the liability of a prosecution, by the publication of his remarks as they stand. If he is willing to confide in us, and will make a previous acknowledgement, we shall not hesitate, then, to stamp the character of the seducer with the odium it deserves.

SKETCHES, No. 7, will be given in our next. There has been two or three omissions this week, which shall be attended to.

Several correspondents in the city, have latterly sent us their cogitations through the post-office—now as we neither like this mode, nor the expense with which it is attended, in future, their communications had better be left in our letter-box.
